I want to put a field into a cell, but the Data type is a drop down list, with only the first item in a string. This means that if I want to get the current value of that cell using the getCell method, I may have to handle the situation where the value in the cell is a 2 digit year; Code: int date = 0; if (cell.getCellType() == Cell.CELL_TYPE_FORMULA) date = ((Date)cell.getDataType()).getDate(); Has anyone come across this situation? The above code always returns 0, even though the cell is a date. Is there some way to treat a date differently, or do I have to write the above code for each possible number of digits in the date? Which DateCellType does this particular cell (or series of cells) contain
