The initiative is being backed by the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) and the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) as it marks an end to almost two years of discussions within international diplomatic bodies. A consensus had not yet been reached by Russia to send Putin to the Netherlands for prosecution for the war crime. As negotiators neared a breakthrough, Ukrainian Foreign Minister Pavlo Klimkin on Tuesday said Moscow and Kiev had made progress in the negotiations. Klimkin, who was speaking in Brussels, said the United States was pushing for a new temporary UNSC resolution on Monday but had had "a good interaction" with Russian Ambassador Vassily Nebenzia. The United States did not comment on the progress. "Everything happened very quickly. By midnight on Monday, it was all over," Klimkin told a news conference, noting there was still a bill to be passed. Officials said there were still formalities to be completed to reach a compromise on the details, but that it was becoming apparent to everyone that the final deal would be a "good compromise". Zelensky jubilant The talks are over a key moment in the history of Ukraine, a modern nation state which was once part of the Soviet Union and is a close NATO ally. Earlier on Tuesday, Ukraine's presidential chief of staff, Valentyn Nalyvaichenko, told Reuters news agency that a deal was on the table. "We are in the final phase of the negotiations... there are no problems," he said.
