In the prior art, virtually all of the nuts that are used for securement of rail and other panels, brackets, and the like to frames have a cylindrical body with an internal flange or rib on the exterior thereof. This flange or rib has a longitudinal slot or groove. A locking tab is formed on the nut and is received within the groove to prevent the nut from being rotated or loosened from the rail or other panel. When the nut is tightened, the tabs are forced into the groove and the flange or rib of the nut engages the rail, panel, or other frame.

What's New In?

AutoCAD's Markup Assist feature enables you to efficiently incorporate comments and additional content into a drawing without manually marking up each component. In addition, Autodesk Clip tool now works with Markup Assist. Autodesk Clip is a free add-on for AutoCAD that is designed to create temporary "footprints" on drawings, to label parts of the drawing for easier review, annotation, and organization. Autodesk Clip enables you to add short text or drawings to your drawing for additional information, comments, reminders, or to mark up a section for future changes. You can use AutoCAD Clip and Markup Assist together with Windows Clipboard to manage clipboards for in-place note-taking, or use them independently of Windows Clipboard to create and send non-AutoCAD files. * Clip Help: AutoCAD's Clip tool now works with Markup Assist to import clipboards. You can create, send, or view clipboards in the Attach and Share dialog box. * Markup Assist: Markup Assist helps you create and incorporate comments into a drawing. (video: 1:48 min.) You can import comments and feedback into the drawing with Markup Assist. Click the Markup Assist icon in the Attach and Share dialog box. The comments and/or feedback are automatically added to the drawing. The Comments tool now displays in-place comments from the Windows clipboard. To add comments, select one or more objects, then click Comments in the Attach and Share dialog box. You can then paste the comments directly onto the objects, and Markup Assist will automatically import the comments. You can also use the Comments tool to import text from the Windows clipboard or a PDF for annotations. * Comments from the Clipboard: Use Comments tool to annotate drawings and import comments from the Windows clipboard. In the Attach and Share dialog box, click the Comments icon to open the Comments tool. The Comments tool displays in the drawing, and you can type, paste, or copy text from the Windows clipboard. Autodesk Clip tool: Autodesk Clip tool is a free add-on for AutoCAD. When you mark up a drawing with Autodesk Clip, you can quickly identify objects in the drawing and insert them into a clipboard to add the objects to future drawings. (video: 2:06 min.) * Clip to the clipboard:
