Play as Mr. Massagy, the world's greatest "massager." The game is a combination of a puzzle game and a rhythm-based platform game. You play as Mr. Massagy, a man with a bad back who really likes to massage. The purpose of the game is to get from the start of the game to the end. (more...)Q: Remove leading space when combine to strings I have a list which contains strings like (1) "1", (2) "2", (3) "3". Now, When I combine to the strings like (1)+(2)+(3) I get (1)+2+3. And as result I want to get (1)+2+3 I tried with gsub, str_extract functions, but those methods ignore the leading space. Any ideas will be really appreciated. A: gsub("(\\d+)*", "\\1", x, perl=TRUE) gsub("\\d+", "\\1", x, perl=TRUE) x Q: What is the meaning of "babble-on" and why it is used? I just heard the phrase "babble-on" in a page of the New York Times. Can you explain the meaning of "babble-on", and why it is used? A: This is from a context of a colloquial expression, so the meaning will depend on the context, but from the usage I gather a huge mess going on. It means to talk way too much, or to talk for a very long time, or to get really excited. A British variant is to talk absolute gazoo, or "drive under the dashboard" (meaning there's a lot of bumpy stuff), and "talk Latin" is to talk way too much and make too much sense. Another one I once heard is "babble about" or "babble away" (so nobody cares about what you're saying), as a milder form of "babble"

Q: Does button created with button_to not fire a second ajax request? So, I was looking at the rails docs for the button_to helper, and it says that the method :remote => true returns "a set of HTML attributes to pass to the generated HTML", and that the method :update => "some_element" updates the given element with the result of the method. My question is, why would I need to use :update rather than just setting the :onclick? If I have a button that updates a div, and I use the :remote => true, won't clicking the button just submit the form? Why would I need to use :update and update the div on the click? Isn't the main purpose of buttons for doing ajax calls? Thank you. A: Simply it was just a syntax mistake. :update is a parameter to the method, not the method itself. But it looks like I don't need to use update at all. EDIT Cory correctly pointed out that :update is used when we want to update the update, not the form. It's true! Check this great blog post about it. A: The button_to method is used to generate a form tag that includes a javascript:link_to function and two callback parameters. You can make a call to a new action, which in turn makes a call to a remote action with those values as parameters. The button_to method can be called like this: = button_to("Another Action", :action => @action, :controller => @controller, :remote => true, :method => :get, c9d1549cdd

Renal cortical denervation in chronic kidney disease: A review of the literature and lessons from animal models and preliminary human studies. Chronic kidney disease (CKD) is associated with sympathetic nervous system hyperactivation that underlies the progression of hypertension and left ventricular hypertrophy. Denervation of the kidneys removes afferent fibers to the kidneys and has been used experimentally to study the effects of renal denervation in several experimental models of hypertension and CKD. Human studies of renal denervation in hypertension with CKD are still in their infancy, yet animal studies have begun to deliver important lessons to the field. The local renal nerves are poorly defined, and there are several different types of renal nerves that cannot yet be distinguished with the resolution of current imaging techniques. The effects of renal denervation vary between species and anatomic sites. In hypertension and in models of CKD, renal denervation impairs the initiation and maintenance of hypertension, accelerates the development of CKD, and ameliorates, at least in part, the development of CKD and cardiomyopathy. This review summarizes these findings

The current status of human studies of renal denervation are also reviewed, and lessons from the animal data are applied to the understanding of the effects of denervation in the human disease. full title) innovation landscape is the experience of unity within context. Context is a perspective that the space provides. Context is the very forces or qualities the space itself enables.
