The King's advisers have torn up the writ of Al-Mutama, defying the will of the people. Freedom! Or Death!" - Abul Amir's endgame message "The King has ordered us to move east - a hundred-mile march from the battlefield. He is eager to engage the enemy, but the people of the desert will not let him pass. I have to seek out the people who are fomenting rebellion among the tribes of the desert, and advise them that the King's quest is not theirs - nor does the King wish to offer them trial. The people of the desert are a proud people; they are not to be trifled with." - The Shah "The King has given you one last chance to lift the siege; he's told you he will give you freedom from all this turmoil, once the knight's armor is removed. You have only one option - surrender." - King Al-Mu'tassem "The people want freedom - who can stop them?" - Erhal Namooma "The King's advisers have betrayed him, they have failed the people and insulted their faith.
