- "I'm going to make a long, unabashed, and uncensored "lips-on-masseur" review of Elden Ring from The Game Club here. The game is really good! From the get-go, here are the things I like about Elden Ring: - The combination of the fantasy setting with high level and visually stunning graphics is what makes this game so enjoyable. It is visually appealing enough to keep you hooked, but not so visually heavy that it makes the gameplay seem boring. - There is so much to do in Elden Ring. The game is short, but not short enough that you are limited in what you can do in a single playthrough. You will still be able to enjoy a lot of content when you play through the game, and there is a lot of content to play through. You can continue to collect more side quests and such when you play through the game. - The game also has several side quests, which are easily accessible, and if you need to grind for a set item, it's easy to do. - There is a lot of gear to acquire, and the equipment in Elden Ring is high quality. I've only run across a few bugs that caused them to level up really quickly, and that was because the game hadn't been updated in a while, and such bugs are rare because the developer keeps an eye out for such things. A lot of items are unlocked simply by playing the game, and there is a big variety in the equipment. - One of the things I like most about Elden Ring is that the items that you get as you play through the game are cosmetic only. You don't have to worry about getting an item that makes your stats not stack up and get you screwed because you didn't spend money on a gear set. You can get items simply by simply playing the game. There are a lot of good gear sets that you will get along the way, and there is a lot of money to spend on gear to increase your stats. - Elden Ring also has interesting balance choices. It is balanced so that there is no clear-cut better gear set, and you will need to make your own call when to use the gear that you have in hand, and when to acquire new gear or to scrap it all and try something else. - As bff6bb2d33
