Hard-Bodied Delivery Boy is a funny physics platformer where your fat body is used to push, jump and glide and all this while you need to put the boxes on your cart to deliver to your customer. You are a fat sluggard who experiences, what is more, problems with money. In the pandemic situation the role of a delivery guy's job has strongly increased. And as you still don't have any professional skills, this is an ideal choice for you. Because of suffering from overweight you are able only to walk slowly down the street (not run) but after carrying out a number of deliveries you will lose some weight and make some money. If you want to become fit and to deliver your orders rushing along roofs like a parkourer you will have to keep to a healthy diet and visit a gym. It takes quite a big sum of money and to earn it you should work hard. Remember: it depends only on you how you will bring it all together staying under permanent threat of infection. In their studies, Simett-Kennedy and colleagues noted that belly fat (as well as thigh fat) does not significantly regress when a woman is pregnant or not pregnant. Thus, it can be concluded that "a lower BMI in the obese post-pregnancy is a result of weight loss in the non-obese and not a sign of a healthy pregnancy." matopoietic stem cell transplantation in patients with relapsed and refractory acute myeloid leukemia. Recurrent acute myeloid leukemia (AML) is a common condition that occurs after bone marrow transplantation. Between 1958 and 1979, 228 patients received "bone marrow transplants" at this Institution. Of these, 48 had AML. Eighteen of them received immunosuppression without grafting, one patient received pre-symptomatic therapy with radiation, and 29 patients received bone marrow transplantation after relapse or in second or subsequent disease. Of these, six patients received hematopoietic stem (HSC) transplants after relapse or in second or subsequent relapse. The median time for this was 21 months. Two of the six patients are alive. Three of the six patients are alive with continuous complete remission, and two of the six with hematologic recovery only. All patients had a complete remission of marrow obtained in the first year after transplant and have marrow with the absence of recurrent leukemia and additional signs of chronic graft-versus-host disease. Five patients are alive more than 5 years after transplant. HSC grafting cannot be recommended for patients with recurrent AML, except perhaps as a last chance approach. However, given the superior results observed in selected patients we believe that this approach may benefit some patients with recurrent AML.
