

Another thing is that I'm only getting a single row of data. If I don't use 'truncate' I get two rows. I can see that the first data row is 'appearances' and the second one is 'nice'. Sample data: keener,1000,new york kittles,800,miami My php script that returns this data: if (isset($_POST['keener']) || isset($_POST['kittles'])) { $keener = $_POST['keener']; $kittles = $_POST['kittles']; $query = sprintf("SELECT * FROM appearances WHERE adate=%s AND month=%s AND year=%s and keener=%s and kittles=%s", mysql_real_escape_string($_POST['adate']), mysql_real_escape_string($_POST['month']), mysql_real_escape_string($_POST['year']), mysql_real_escape_string($keener), mysql_real_escape_string($kittles)); $result = mysql_query($query); while ($row = mysql_fetch_assoc($result)) { $records[$row['keener']][$row['month']][$row['year']] = $row; 6d1f23a050
